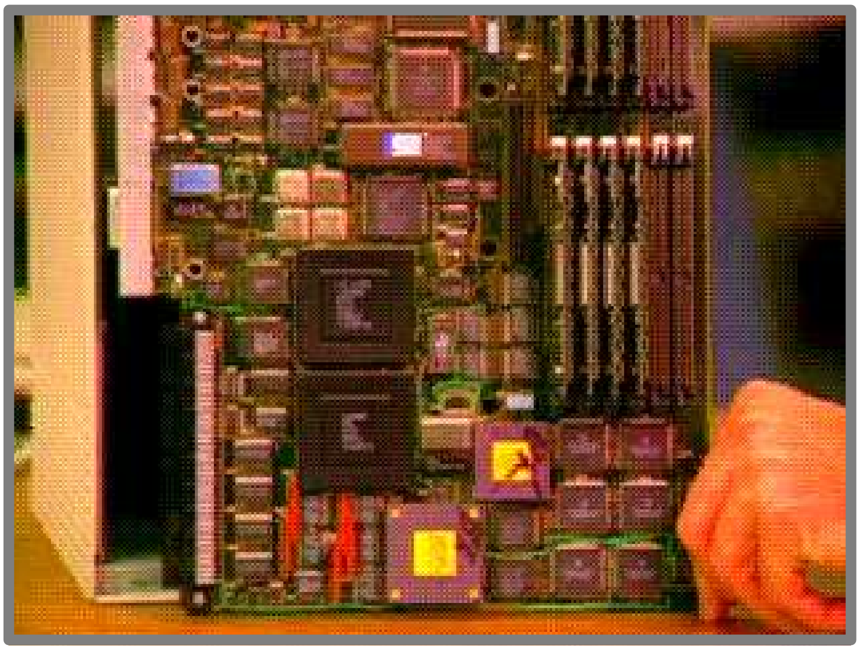
Thinking about software development

G. Wrochna



Nowadays CPU time and RAM space are not the crucial problem in computing. They are cheaper and cheaper.

The only item which cost is still rising are gray cells.

Therefore just software development becomes a bottleneck. Especially painful is debugging.

A possible way to go is to use

Computer
Aided
Software
Engenering

tools.